Almonds

The almond is native to Iran, from northwestern Saudi Arabia, north through western Jordan, Israel, Lebanon, western Syria, to southern Turkey.

The ancestry of Almonds is unknown but Almonds are thought to have originated in China and Central Asia.

The Almond tree was brought to California from Spain in the mid 1700s, cross breeding developed several prominent almond varieties. By the turn of the twentieth century, the almond industry was firmly established in California's Central Valley. California is the largest almond growing region of the world.

There are over 40 varieties of Almonds that have been developed and grown commercially worldwide

We at Service Foods stock only the highest quality raw ingredients. Thus we stock Almonds in the Non Pareil grade. These are Almonds Natural Whole which are larger sized almonds with few blemishes. Other common grades available are Mission, Price and Carmel.
